"My favourite Hunter semi meister, Andrew Margan, says 2007 saw this old ex-Lindeman's semillon block (30 year-old-vines; dry grown; volcanic clay; 1.1 tonnes/acre) ripen very quickly in its third year of drought.

But he picked it at a modest alcohol before losing natural acidity, so we have a slightly more accessible Hunter semi than usual.

Alluring whiffs of wheaten straw, very faint honey and Bickford's lime stack the gentle bouquet; these flavours slide smoothly onto the palate, which is more viscous than usual, and therefore slightly more comfy."
